THINK BODY THAT OF MISSING GIRL

FINDING OF CORPSE MAY SOLVE MYSTERY OF FRANCES SMITH

Believe Body Drifted In
River After Suicide

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 30.—Discovery of the nude decomposed body of a young woman in a deserted field near here may bring to a close the search for Miss Frances St. John Smith, whose disappearance from Smith College more than a year ago created nationwide attention.

Identification of the victim was expected to be completed today when a New York dentist who had done work upon the young college girl's teeth prior to her disappearance, arrives here at the request of Major Thomas J. Hammond, of Northampton, attorney for the girl's family.

Major Hammond, who viewed the body last night at the undertaking rooms where it was taken for examination, expressed the opinion that it was the body of Miss Smith.

Due to the long exposure to the elements, the sole means of identifying the body lies in the teeth. Silver wires attached to two of the lateral teeth from a silver band were said by the New York dentist, whose name is withheld, to be similar to work done on the Smith girl's teeth.

Through the description of the victim given out by Medical Examiner Frederick Jones does not tally completely with Miss Smith's description, authorities expressed the belief that long immersion in water had changed the body almost beyond recognition.

Employees of the Merritt Chapman and Scott Corporation found the young woman's body in a field one mile below the south end bridge in Longmeadow yesterday afternoon. They were searching for the body of a fellow worker who had drowned.

The body hung suspended from the branches of a tree about twenty feet from the bank of the Connecticut. A piece of blue serge cloth, trimmed with a red type border, found about the neck, was the only piece of clothing on the body.

As far as could be immediately determined, there were no signs of violence before death.

It would be impossible to determine the cause of death, Medical Examiner Jones pointed out.

The point where the body was found lent weight to the theory that the victim was Miss Smith. Approximately twenty miles from Northampton, Mass., where Smith College is located, and on the same river—the Connecticut—the body might easily have floated down stream.

Several theories were advanced to explain Miss Smith's disappearance. As the search widened throughout the country, with no trace of the girl found, authorities turned to suicide as the only explanation.

It was known that Miss Smith had expressed dissatisfaction with college life and had had some difficulty with her studies.

Miss Smith was the daughter of St. John Smith, wealthy New York financier. She was described as a rather shy girl who found her chief enjoyment in reading and in music.

Boxer Dies After Bout; Probe Death

STUEBENVILLE, O., March 30.—A public inquest into the death of Tony Azerra, Pittsburgh featherweight boxer, will be conducted by Coroner Arch Bell, it was announced today.

Azerra, who was stricken with cerebral hemorrhages following his bout with Young Sweeney of Minneapolis, O., here last Tuesday night, died at Ohio Valley Hospital late yesterday.

An operation performed by Dr. George Hayes, Pittsburgh brain specialist, failed to save the fighter's life. Azerra never regained consciousness since he collapsed in his dressing room an hour after the fight.

The hemorrhages may have been caused by concussion of the brain which he suffered in an accident several weeks ago.

PENITENTES RE-ENACT SCENE AT CALVARY

Members Of Sect Scourge Themselves On Good Friday While One Of Number Submits To Crucifixion.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., March 30.—In the mountains of northern New Mexico, by the light of a full moon, the religious order of the Penitentes early today acted out again the suffering of Christ at Calvary.

A provident Penitente, barefooted and naked except for a loin cloth, bore a heavy wooden cross up the steep mountainside last night while fellow members of the order whipped him. Over cactus plants and jagged rocks he trudged with his burden, to be crucified.

The exact time and place of the crucifixion was obscure because only faithful Penitentes were permitted to witness it.

But at the height of the penance procession, as last night's spectacle was known, the member of the band who had been chosen to play the part of Christ, was doomed to be tied to a cross with a rope and left there until he lost consciousness. Then he was to be cut down. The ceremony atoned for their sins and shortcomings, the Penitentes believed.

The ceremony actually started at dawn yesterday when the Penitentes began inflicting suffering upon themselves to purge their souls of sin. Their Good Friday penance was done around the Morada, or praying place.

All day long they beat their bare backs and limbs with crude clubs, made of heavy braided weeds. Then at dusk they started the procession from the Morada to the mountains for the sacred ceremony of the crucifixion.

A long line of almost naked men, they marched single file into the mountain fastness, still beating themselves and crying out in pain when they drew blood.

A patrol of men carrying rifles encompassed the spot where the cross was planted and denied to outsiders even a glimpse of the crucifixion.

FOUR DROWNED WHEN AUTO FALLS IN CREEK

IBERIA, O., March 30.—Four Chagrin Falls school teachers were drowned near here late last night when their automobile skidded from the Harding Highway and plunged into a creek.

The victims were tentatively identified as Betty Munyan and Hilda Lehman of Columbus; Ada Michener of Waynesville and Ruth Lukens of Marion.

The four teachers left Cleveland late yesterday to drive to Columbus to spend Easter Sunday.

Details of the accident were not available immediately.

TRADITIONAL PARIS EASTER PARADE MAY LOOK LIKE PEACOCK PROCESSION

By PRINCESS ALI FAZIL
United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS, March 30.—If the sun shines tomorrow morning, the traditional Easter parade of Paris will look like a procession of peacocks.

There never has been such a riot of hues as this year. After a long winter of leaden skies, dress makers designed this year's Easter robes by squeezing all the color tubes they had and wielding brushes with both hands.

Against the green background of the Bois de Boulogne on Sunday, will move a massed column of reds and yellows, blues and greens and more grays than ever.

It is a tradition that on Easter morning the smart Parisian should rise early, don a rather dull gown and go to church, only a bouquet of white lilies of the valley breaking the severity of her robe. Mass over, there comes the metamorphosis.

She goes home and dresses up.

FORMER CONVICT IS SOUGHT IN MISSING KENT YOUTH'S CASE

Believe Degenerate May Have Kidnaped Boy
For Revenge

KENT, O., March 30.—Nine year old Edmond Cox remained lost in the void of the unknown today as police sought an ex-convict and known degenerate who may have disposed of the lad.

Young Edmond dropped from sight Wednesday as completely and enigmatically as 4-year-old Melvin Horst of Orville, who has not been seen since December 27.

Search for the ex-convict was begun when it was revealed that some of Edmond's relatives were responsible for the convict's conviction. He was convicted of assaulting a little girl and upon being liberated, vowed he would exact vengeance from those who testified against him.

It first was believed that Edmond had run away. This was discarded for the drowning theory, then threats made by the former convict were resurrected.

The convict is believed living in Cleveland and County Detective S. N. Sanford drove there today to confer with police.

Edmond lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Cox, on Raven Road, three miles east of here.

Kent is aroused and volunteers have aided officers in the various searches.

By eleven o'clock, she must be in the village de Bois de Boulogne, and for one hour, she must join the parade which moves up and down between the Arc de Triomphe and the entrance to the forest. Tradition also has it that the parade must move only on the left side of the street, and so strong a tradition that even though the sun shines just as brightly on the right side of the road no one moves there.

Parade of Tailors
This is going to be a parade of tailored dresses. The ateliers have been busy for weeks getting ready. The ultra-chic tailors will be in light-weight woens with varied designs of block lines, stripes, cross checks and diagonals.

To be smart the tailors must be very plain. The only fancy touch can be given to the blouse, which may be of crepe de Chine or white satin. A flower or even a good-sized nosegay may be used to break the monotony of the tailors, but they should be of the same color as the cloth. A silver fox fur hung nonchalantly over the shoulders completes an ensemble which is really becoming because of its simplicity.

If you are still of tender age and your cheeks have the bloom of youth which does not come out of cosmetic cases, you have the right to a bit more color and less severity in line, although no costume should be overvalued this year.

Printed Velvet Collar
For the young girl there is the novelty of a printed velvet collar in cloth which matches the velvet handbag. That was one of the happy ideas Paris creators had this spring and it has been many years since I have seen anything so simple and yet so attractive.

Personality does not lose its rights in tailored suits, because it takes more than a tailor to make a dress hang well. In a flounced dress a slight imperfection is never noticeable. In a strict tailor, everything faulty shows.

You must pay strict attention to what you carry when you wear a strict tailor. A handbag out of tone, a gaudy handkerchief, or a poorly selected pair of shoes may wreck the whole symphony.

Too much emphasis cannot be placed on careful selection of bag and shoes. It is a good idea to choose them in harmony, of the same matching material if possible. How often we see wrong shoes with morning wear!

SENTENCE MINER
ATHENS, O., March 30.—Ray McLaughlin, former miners' leader, must serve ten years in the state penitentiary for beating a mine guard, Judge L. B. Webstall has ruled. McLaughlin was the first of a group of alleged mine rioters who must face trial.

NAMED SENATOR

HENRY J. ALLEN
Former Governor Henry Allen of Kansas has been appointed U. S. Senator to succeed Vice President Charles Curtis.

CURE CONVICTS OF STRIKING

OHIO STATE PENITENTIARY, COLUMBUS, O., March 30.—Ben Rudner of Massillon, came up out of the depths of "the hole" today and returned, a much chastened striker, to work in the prison automobile tag factory.

Rudner and four other convicts, Warden P. E. Thomas revealed today, went "on strike" late Thursday declaring they "were tired of working and much preferred loafing."

Although threatened by guards, the five remained defiant and Warden Thomas ordered them to sign to "the hole," a dark dungeon in the lower recesses of the penitentiary.

Twenty-four hours in the hole, on a diet of bread and water, brought the recalcitrants to time and Warden Thomas ordered them returned to their jobs in the tag factory.

Rudner is serving time for participation in the murder of Don R. Mellett, editor of the Canton Daily News.

OKEH BEVINS HURT IN PLANE CRASH

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 30.—Okeh Bevins, injured when his airplane crashed into a tree near Bland, Mo., last night, was reported in a serious condition at a hospital here today.

The aviator suffered serious fractures of both legs and internal injuries hospital physicians said.

Bevins left Los Angeles recently on an attempted non-stop flight to New York but was forced down at Willard, N. Mex. After completing minor engine repairs, he flew to Amarillo, Tex., and was attempting to complete his New York flight when he crashed last night.

MAN SLAYS WIFE

CLEVELAND, O., March 30.—Thomas Morich, 33, will be charged with the murder of his wife, Rose, 34, if he recovers from a bullet wound in his head, inflicted after his wife was killed, police said today.

Police charge that Morich shot his wife in a room where she had been living since she left him last Saturday, then shot himself.

DRY INVESTIGATOR SIGNED FALSE NAME TO SEARCH WARRANT

Attorneys In Aurora
Case Say Paper Was Illegal

AURORA, Ill., March 30.—Another technicality, questioning the validity of the search warrant used in raiding the cottage in which Mrs. Lillian De King was killed by county dry agents, arose today as funeral services for the victim were being held.

Boyd Fairchild, the "mystery" investigator, who signed the complaint that led to the raid in which Deputy Sheriff Roy Smith killed Mrs. De King with a charge from a sawed-off shotgun, it became known, used an alias first name.

Fairchild, who disappeared from Aurora the day after the shooting, was found at his father's home in Odell, Ill., and will be held until inquest here next Tuesday.

Special Investigator Charles W. Hadley of the attorney general's office, who was assigned to take charge of the investigation into the slaying after public sentiment had forced State Attorney George Carberry to step aside, ordered Kane County authorities to find Fairchild.

Fairchild's proper first name is Eugene and the name "Boyd" used here while he served as a $5-a-day investigator, was signed to the complaint in which he alleged he had purchased moonshine at the De King home. "Boyd" is the father's name.

Carberry and other county officials were reticent to say whether the use of an alias would affect the legality of the warrant. Another point attacking the legality of the warrant has been raised by Attorney Albert Kelley, representing Joseph De King, husband of the victim.

Kelley announced he would question the right of police Magistrate John J. Weber to issue a warrant outside the limits of Aurora at which point the De King home is located. The magistrate contends his jurisdiction extends throughout the township which goes beyond the city limits.

Fairchild became known as the "mystery investigator" when he disappeared the day after the shooting. When found he said he fled for fear of violence.

The latest developments in the raid today added to the resentment of those who have charged that county investigators have been "covering up" on the details of the raid and that a just investigation was not being made.

Since the shooting of Mrs. De King and the clubbing of her husband by Deputy Smith who led the raiders in their attack, State Attorney Carberry has refused to show the warrant for examination. County officials justified the deputy's action, saying he shot in self defense when Mrs. De King reached for a revolver after she saw her husband knocked to the floor by a blow from the butt of Smith's sawed off shotgun.

Smith was shot and wounded seriously by Gerald De King, 12, when he saw his mother in a serious condition in a hospital at Elgin where he was removed to undergo an operation on the wound in his hip. Doctors said his condition is such that he will be unable to attend the inquest.

A special detail of police was assigned to the De King home and to the district on the outskirts of the city along the route of the funeral procession from the residence to the church.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY MAY BRING SESSION TO CLOSE NEXT WEEK

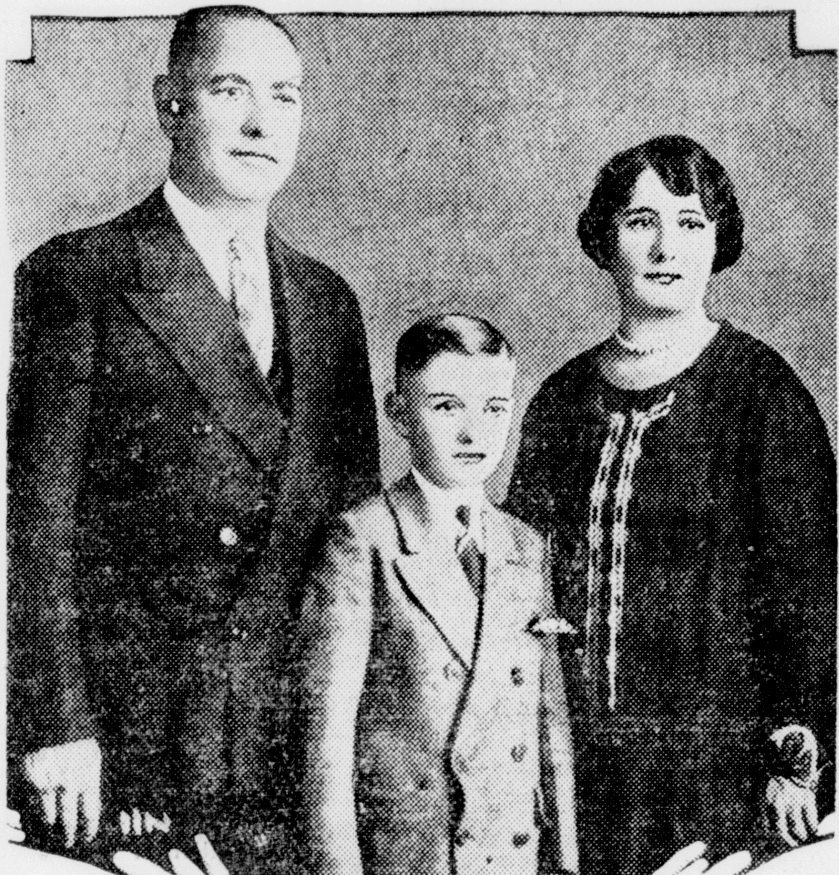

COLUMBUS, O., March 30.—The wheels of the 88th general assembly may cease to grind by the end of next week.

Leaders of both the senate and house today said they believed important pending legislation could be disposed of by that time and that the assembly could then adjourn for ten days or two weeks.

After the recess the solons would return for one or two days to clean up odds and ends, then would adjourn sine die.

During the recess, clerical work, necessary to permanent adjournment, could be disposed of. Senator G. M. Kumlir of Preble County, chairman of the senate finance committee, said today that

Woman Killing Severely Condemned

Joseph De King was beaten about the head, his wife, Lillian, shot dead, and a dry agent wounded by their son in a raid on their home at Aurora, Ill. Dry agents claim that the De Kings, above, resisted their entry and they were obliged to use force to gain entry. Prohibition Commissioner J. M. Doran, when notified at Washington, said that "strongarm methods and the use of firearms in prohibition enforcement are strictly prohibited in Federal service."

FORMER GOVERNOR ALLEN WILL SUCCEED CURTIS IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, March 30.—Henry J. Allen, former governor of Kansas, will be appointed to the United States senate to fill the vacancy left by the election of Charles Curtis to the vice-presidency, according to announcement by Gov. Clyde M. Reed, of Kansas.

Gov. Reed made the announcement last night after a conference with President Herbert Hoover at the White House, saying he would make the appointment immediately upon his return to Topeka, the state capital.

With the president and governor at the conference were Secretary of War Wood and James Francis Burke, counsel for the Republican national committee.

The formal statement, issued last night by Gov. Reed, emphasized the indicated reluctance of President Hoover to suggest a name for the vacancy but when the name of the former governor was mentioned the president seemed gratified.

Allen, who was publicly director of the Republican national committee during the Hoover campaign for a time was connected with much the same work as has long interested President Hoover. He was special commissioner for Near East relief to investigate work in southern Russia, Armenia, Syria, Turkey, Greece, Palestine and Persia.

He was owner of the Wichita Daily Beacon until some months ago when he sold controlling interest and went to Omaha to edit a Hearst paper. He entered the newspaper business as editor of the Manhattan Nationalist in 1894.

Allen has long been a political opponent of the faction headed by Vice President Curtis in Kansas politics. During the pre-convention campaign, when Curtis was a presidential candidate, Allen favored Mr. Hoover and bitterness between the two outstanding Kansans increased.

Allen, who was publicly director of the Republican national committee during the Hoover campaign for a time was connected with much the same work as has

The U. S. Weather Bureau has inserted the disconcerting word "snow" into their forecast for Easter Sunday, for the east, and have for some sections forecast northwest winds.

Ohio, New York, and Pennsylvania are the unfortunate sections to face the "snow" forecast. It will be only flurries, according to the bureau, but snow never-the-less.

New England must face showers and clouds and cold northwest winds, the bureau forecast says, while the middle east will see a possible clear sky swept by chilly winds.

The south, Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky and West Virginia, must face showers but Florida holds forth for moderate winds and mild temperatures without any rain.

Other important measures awaiting senate disposition are the Norton highway bill and the "sundries claims" measure, the latter still to be introduced.

The house has yet to act upon the Emmons conservation bill, the Herbert election law reauthorization measure, the Herbert blue sky law reauthorization bill, the Marshall bill for corporation code revision and the "sundries claims" bill.

Speaker O. C. Gray told the United Press today that he believed the house could dispose of all the measures before the end of the week.

LIQUOR SMUGGLING BY CONGRESSMEN TO RESULT IN INQUIRY

Illinois Dry League Candidate Among Accused Solons

WASHINGTON, March 30.—Dry in congress are looking into the question of how far the system of allowing public officials "freedom of the port" has been abused, with a view to preventing misuse of the freedom.

Aroused by the disclosure that Rep. Michaelson, Republican, Illinois had been indicted for smuggling liquor and also the simultaneous reports which are going around capitol corridors about the recent junket of congressmen and senators to Panama, the dry authorities are indicating privately they intend to go to the bottom of the matter.

They have discovered there is no law or authority for granting congressmen immunity from customs searches at American ports. The regulations of the treasury department permits "high government officials" such a privilege within the discretion of the department but dry say they interpret this regulation as applying only to diplomatic officials.

Inquiring into the practice, the dry leaders have ascertained the regulation has been subjected to liberal interpretation and that practically all congressmen who have asked such immunity were granted it.

"LIQUOR" JUNKETS
There have been many reports that congressional junkets abroad were being used to bring in liquor and even stories that diplomatic representatives of the government were sometimes involved.

The matter is not one for legislation but the dry indicate they will bring pressure upon the treasury department to abolish the practice entirely if their investigation lends proof to the stories they have heard.

Among those interested is Senator Borah of Idaho, leading dry campaigner for President Hoover in the recent presidential campaign.

Meantime few senators of congressmen desire to talk to prohibitionists about the Michaelson incident or the Panama junket, particularly about the question of ethics involved in "voting dry and drinking wet" a question aired in the senate prohibition debate last session between Borah and Senator James A. Reed of Missouri.

LAW MAKER HAS NOT SURRENDERED

CHICAGO, March 30.—Congressman M. Alfred Michaelson, raker of laws, becomes a fugitive from justice today unless he surrenders to face charges of possessing, transporting and importing an assortment of fancy liquors in Florida more than a year ago.

Michaelson who is believed to be in Chicago but so far is unlocated, was ordered arrested yesterday by United States Commissioner Ed-

ACCUSE SAILORS OF FURNISHING BOOZE

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30.—Eight members of the crew of the army transport St. Mihiel will be sent to New York to stand trial on charges of selling liquor to soldiers while the vessel was bound from the east coast to San Francisco.

At a hearing of the crew before a United States commissioner here, several soldiers testified to the potency of the liquor, said to have been sold, but none admitted becoming intoxicated.

Private Calvin Hicks said, "the liquor got better as the ship approached California." He admitted buying sixty craps at $5 each after a "lucky crap game." He said he thought he was drinking ether.

The eight men are to be sent to New York for trial because the first sales, according to the testimony, were made within the three mile limit at that port.

ARRIVES AT PEN

COLUMBUS, O., March 30.—James T. Nevins, former lake sailor who was convicted of killing a fellow prisoner in the Cuyahoga County Jail, has been received at the death house at the state penitentiary. His execution is set for July 1. Nevins shares a cell with John Sabo of Akron and Rodney Ford of Hamilton County, both of whom are condemned to die.

CONGRESS DRIES MAY PROBE CHARGES

THINK BODY THAT OF MISSING GIRL

FINDING OF CORPSE MAY SOLVE MYSTERY OF FRANCES SMITH

Believe Body Drifted In
River After Suicide

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 30.—Discovery of the nude decomposed body of a young woman in a deserted field near here may bring to a close the search for Miss Frances St. John Smith, whose disappearance from Smith College more than a year ago created nationwide attention.

Identification of the victim was expected to be completed today when a New York dentist who had done work upon the young college girl's teeth prior to her disappearance, arrives here at the request of Major Thomas J. Hammond, of Northampton, attorney for the girl's family.

Major Hammond, who viewed the body last night at the undertaking rooms where it was taken for examination, expressed the opinion that it was the body of Miss Smith.

Due to the long exposure to the elements, the sole means of identifying the body lies in the teeth. Silver wires attached to two of the lateral teeth from a silver band were said by the New York dentist, whose name is withheld, to be similar to work done on the Smith girl's teeth.

It would be impossible to determine the cause of death, Medical Examiner Jones pointed out. The point where the body was found lent weight to the theory that the victim was Miss Smith.

Approximately twenty miles from Northampton, Mass., where Santa Colina is located, and on the same river, the Connecticut, the body might easily have floated down stream.

Several theories were advanced to explain Miss Smith's disappearance. As the search widened throughout the country, with no trace of the girl found, authorities turned to suicide as the only explanation.

It was known that Miss Smith had expressed dissatisfaction with college life and had had some difficulty with her studies.

Miss Smith was the daughter of St. John Smith, wealthy New York financier. She was described as a rather shy girl who found her chief enjoyment in reading and in music.

BOXER DIES AFTER BOUT; PROBE DEATH

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 30.—A public inquest into the death of Tony Azerra, Pittsburgh featherweight boxer, will be conducted by Coroner Arch Bell, it was announced today.

Azerra, who was stricken with cerebral hemorrhages following his bout with Young Sweeney of Mingo, O., here last Tuesday night, died at Ohio Valley Hospital late yesterday.

An operation performed by Dr. George Hayes, Pittsburgh brain specialist, failed to save the fighter's life. Azerra never regained consciousness since he collapsed in his dressing room an hour after the fight.

The hemorrhages may have been caused, friends of Azerra said today, by concussion of the brain which he suffered in an accident several weeks ago.

Fairchild, who disappeared from Aurora the day after the shooting, was found at his father's home in Odell, Ill., and will be held until inquest here next Tuesday.

Special investigator Charles W. Hadley of the Chicago Police Department, who was assigned to take charge of the investigation into the slaying after public sentiment had forced State's Attorney George Carberry to step aside, ordered Kane County authorities to find Fairchild.

Fairchild's proper first name is Eugene and the name "Boyd" used here while he served as a $5-a-day investigator, was signed to the United States senate to fill the vacancy left by the election of Charles Curtis to the vice-presidency.

Gov. Reed made the announcement last night after a conference with President Herbert Hoover at the White House, saying he would make the appointment immediately upon his return to Topeka, the state capital.

With the president and governor at the conference were Secretary of War Wood and James Francis Burke, counsel for the Republican national committee.

The formal statement, issued last night by Gov. Reed, emphasized the indicated reluctance of President Hoover to suggest a name for the vacancy but when the name of the former president seemed gratified.

OF ALL SAD WORDS!

WASHINGTON, March 30.—The U. S. Weather Bureau has inserted the disconcerting word "snow" into their forecast for Easter Sunday, for the east, and have for some sections forecast northwest winds.

Ohio, New York, and Pennsylvania are the unfortunate sections to face the "snow" forecast. It will be only flurries, according to the bureau, but snow never-the-less.

New England must face showers and clouds and cold northwest winds, the bureau forecast says, while the middle east will see a possible clear sky swept by chilly winds.

The south, Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky and West Virginia, must face showers but Florida holds forth for moderate winds and mild temperatures without any rain.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY MAY BRING
SESSION TO CLOSE NEXT WEEK

COLUMBUS, O., March 30.—The wheels of the 88th general assembly may cease to grind by the end of next week.

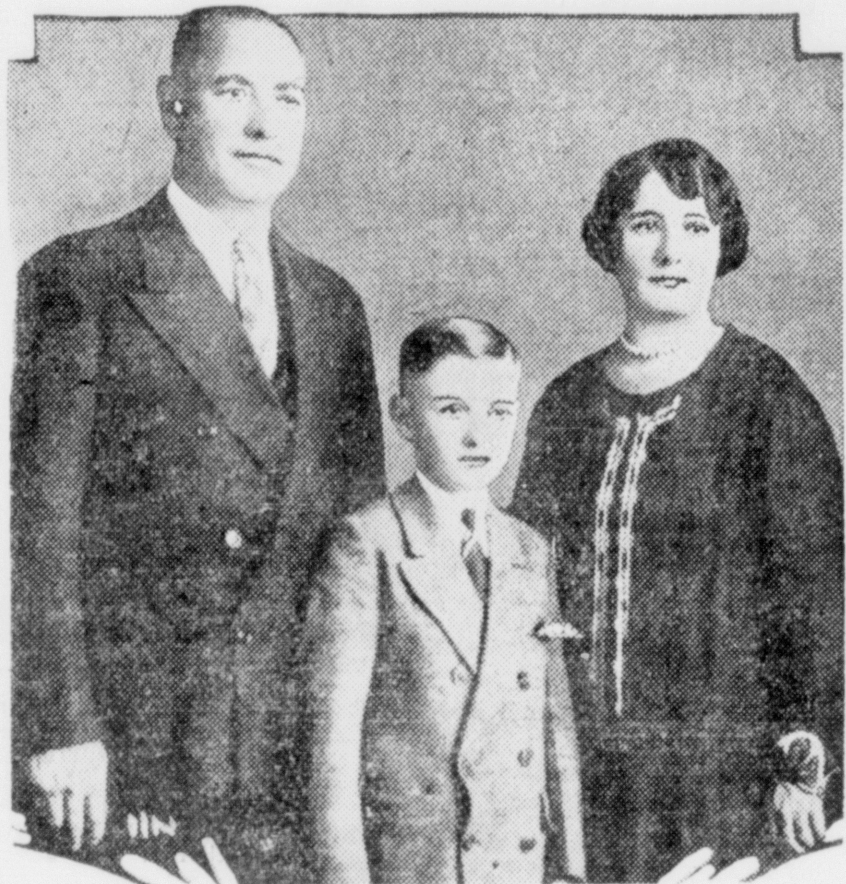

Leaders of both the senate and house today said they believed important pending legislation could be disposed of by that time and that the assembly could then adjourn for ten days or two weeks.

After the recess the solons would return for one or two days to clean up odds and ends, then would adjourn sine die.

During the recess, clerical work, necessary to permanent adjournment, could be disposed of.

Senator G. M. Kumer of Preble County, chairman of the senate Finance committee, said today that

CLAIM DOVER MAYOR
WITHHELD FINES OF
$6,500 IN DRY CASES

Dry Crusader Will Face
Grand Jury Probe
On Friday

DOVER, O., March 30.—Evidence to support their charge that Mayor P. J. Groh, already bound over to the grand jury on a bribery charge, withheld liquor fines totaling $6,500 was being sought today by Deputy Prohibition Commissioners Edward Little and W. L. Lewis.

Sixteen persons who have been fined by Groh, and forty others were to be questioned today, Little said. Mayor Groh denied the charges.

The mayor was arraigned on a charge of accepting a $50 bribe from Little last week. Little, posing as a rum runner, said he paid the mayor the money in return for permission to truck a load of liquor through the city. State Prohibition Commissioner Rupert R. Beetham has asked Governor Myers to remove Mayor Groh on the strength of Little's charges.

The grand jury will consider the case next Friday. Russell C. Bowers, the mayor's attorney, said the hearing before the grand jury, set for Tuesday, probably would be delayed until after the grand jury acts.

LIQUOR SMUGGLING BY CONGRESSMEN TO RESULT IN INQUIRY

Illinois Dry League Candidate Among Accused Solons

WASHINGTON, March 30.—Drys in congress are looking into the question of how far the system of allowing public officials "freedom of the port" has been abused, with a view to preventing misuse of the freedom.

Aroused by the disclosure that Rep. Michaelson, Republican, Illinois had been indicted for smuggling liquor and also the simultaneous reports which are going around capitol corridors about the recent junket of congressmen and senators to Panama, the dry authorities are indicating privately they intend to go to the bottom of the matter.

They have discovered there is no law or authority for granting congressmen immunity from customs searches at American ports. The regulations of the treasury department permits "high government officials" such a privilege within the discretion of the department but drys say they interpret this regulation as applying only to diplomatic officials.

Inquiring into the practice, the dry leaders have ascertained the regulation has been subjected to liberal interpretation and that practically all congressmen have asked such immunity were granted it.

"LIQUOR" JUNKETS
There have been many reports that congressional junkets abroad were being used to bring in liquor and even stories that diplomatic representatives of the government were sometimes involved.

The matter is not one for legislation but the drys indicate they will bring pressure upon the treasury department to abolish the practice entirely if their investigation lends proof to the stories they have heard.

Among those interested is Senator Borah of Idaho, leading dry campaigner for President Hoover in the recent presidential campaign.

Meantime few senators or congressmen desire to talk on subcommittee either about the Michaelson incident or the Panama junket, particularly about the question of ethics involved in "volting dry and drinking wet" a question aired in the senate prohibition debate last session between Borah and Senator James A. Reed of Missouri.

LAW MAKER HAS NOT SURRENDERED

CHICAGO, March 30.—Congressman M. Alfred Michaelson, trustee of laws, becomes a fugitive from justice today unless he surrenders to face charges of possessing, transporting and importing an assortment of fancy liquors in Florida more than a year ago.

Michaelson who is believed to be in Chicago but so far is unlocated, was ordered arrested yesterday by United States Commissioner Edward Little.

ACCUSE SAILORS OF FURNISHING BOOZE

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30.—Eight members of the crew of the army transport St. Mihiel will be sent to New York to stand trial on charges of selling liquor to soldiers while the vessel was bound from the east coast to San Francisco.

At a hearing of the crew before a United States commissioner here, several soldiers testified to the potency of the liquor, said to have been sold, but none admitted becoming intoxicated.

Private Calvin Hicks said, "the liquor got better as the ship approached California." He admitted buying sixty pints as $5 each after a "lucky crap game." He said he thought he was drinking ether.

The eight men are to be sent to New York for trial because the first sales, according to the testimony, were made within the three mile limit at that port.

WITCHERY BLAMED
IN BRUTAL MURDER OF AGED SEERESS

ATLANTA, Ga., March 30.—The strange case of Martha Russell, 80-year-old "seeress," murdered in her little red cottage March 17, has balked police and private investigators, and left an eerie feeling in the city of Rome, Ga., where she lived, that there was much in the realm of witchcraft behind the slaying.

Among the superstitious negroes and white farmers of northern Georgia there is a tradition that no gun can kill a "witch." Miss Russell was slain with a knife. Her throat was cut three times, and she also was stabbed in the breast.

The woman who had made a name through the countryside as a fortune teller, and spinner of "voodoo charms" came from Scotland many years ago. The black arts and superstitions of the heaths and moors of her native land were said to have been part of her stock in trade.

Into the dim parlor of her little cottage, thousands had come through the years, white and black, to ask her aid. Some wanted enemies "hexed." Others wanted to find lost jewelry. The majority wanted advice on love problems. The little old woman, described as having long grey white hair, a wrinkled face with a heavy growth of hair on her chin and upper lip, would pound an old cane and in a wheezy voice dole out her warnings and suggestions.

Money Not Taken
In boxes she kept dried spiders, various roots and herbs, dried frog skins, watermelon seeds and string beans. These charms were sold for various sums, depending on the seriousness of the questioner's ailment.

A mechanic, suffering from a skin disease, found her body when he came to receive aid. The body lay on the floor, blood about it. Boxes of charms were opened. Oddly enough $200 in bills was left untouched.

Who killed Martha Russell remains as moot a question today as the day of the murder. It was certain she had either a premonition or a casual fear of death. A few days before she was slain she called a neighbor to the fence and said, "Look out for me. Something is going to happen."

One illuminating letter was found in her possession. It left little light on the murder mystery but a great deal on her activities and indicated someone who was "hexed" may have killed her.

It read in part:
Dear Aunt Martha: I want you to do some work for me. I want you to bring back this man to me for I love him and I don't want him to go with other girls. .... I will see you before long. Please go to work on this man as soon as you get this letter."

HOME ECONOMICS

Celebration of the annual tea by the Home Economics Club was held in the Ross Twp. home economics room, March 22, to which all the teachers, mothers and members were invited. This party marked the closing of a three months' interior decorating contest between the two groups of the club. One group, under the chairmanship of Edna Knisley and Helen Turnbull redecorated the girls' rest room. Opal Elliott and Mary Alice Jenks were the leaders of the other group which applied art to the home economics room.

Now the home economics room has a color scheme of blue, ivory and Chinese red—the colors being carried out in the draperies, the oil cloth covers for the sewing tables, the lamp shades and in the flower pots. The colors in the girls' rest room, which are rose and tan, are found in the draperies, rugs, cushions, curtains, chairs and dressing table.

win K. Walker for removal to Jacksonville, Fla., where he must stand trial on an indictment voted last October.

The indictment of Michaelson, who has had support of the Anti-Saloon League each of the three times he was elected to congress, came after Florida state officers in January, 1928, noticed one of his trunks leaking in a railroad station in Jacksonville. Michaelson was returning from a trip to Cuba and entered the United States at Key West, Fla. The state officers turned the trunks over to federal prohibition agents who said they found a large assortment of liquors in them. Michaelson was indicted in Jacksonville the following October but six months elapsed before the indictment became known.

SAY OHIO SOLON
CARRIED BOOZE

NEW YORK, March 30.—Two customs men, in an official report filed with superior officers, have reiterated their charge that Rep. William M. Morgan, dry congressman from Newark, Ohio, had four bottles of liquor in his luggage when he returned from Panama on Sunday.

The accusation was made despite repeated denials by Morgan, who said he had never taken a drink, did not have any liquor when the liner Cristobal docked here, and had always supported the prohibition law.

The two customs men are L. E. Crawford, and James McCabe. The former examined Morgan's luggage while the latter watched. They described the incident as follows:

"Have you any liquor?" Crawford asked.
"Yes, four bottles," Morgan replied.

The four bottles were taken out and placed on a packing case. Morgan insisted he was on official government business and was entitled to free entry into the port. The congressman insisted he would "take care" of this or that man "when I get to Washington."

ALLOWED TO PASS
Finally a deputy surveyor was summoned, and after Morgan had telephoned customs officials, the deputy surveyor ordered the baggage cleared. The four bottles were restored to Morgan.

Then prohibition guards at the pier charged customs officials had been negligent in allowing the liquor to pass. As a result it was established that when Morgan telephoned the customs official he had not mentioned that he had liquor in his luggage.

The association against the prohibition amendment is understood ready to consider the Morgan incident at its meeting next Friday; and a group of lawyers here opposed to the Jones law is studying whether there is ground for procedure against Morgan.

NILES POLICE HEAD
REMOVED BY MAYOR

NILES, Ohio, March 30.—Police Chief Charles Nicholas was removed from office by Mayor George O. Marshall today on charges of incompetency and neglect of duty.

The charges were preferred by four policemen after the suspension of Patrolman Fred Henderson on charges of conduct unbecoming to an officer.

Henderson was accused of asking leniency for a bootlegger who had given him information which resulted in the conviction of other liquor law violators. He involved Nicholas.

The officers filing the complaint charged Chief Nicholas accompanied them on raids last month and that when liquor was found he ordered that no arrests be made, saying he would take care of the cases later.

No action was ever taken, the officers allege.

GARDEN CLUB
NOTES

Last week we spoke of the second of the three big jobs of springtime: now a hint or two on the third one, regarded by some gardeners as the most important of the three, feeding the plants. The well known authority, Victor H. Ries, says that our flower borders call for more strength in the soil than does that gross feeder, corn, grown in an equal space; hence it is necessary to keep up an intelligent enrichment of our flower borders and shrubbery.

The automobile has made it difficult to obtain the old standby, well rotted stable manure, so we must turn to a commercial fertilizer that will furnish the needed chemicals in a less bulky form and of easier application. Use one whose units of composition add up to 16 at least, calling for it by the magic numbers, 12-8-4, 5-13-4, 6-8-6 and so on according to the work you want the fertilizer to do. The first figure gives nitrogen content which brings size and green color; the second, phosphoric acid, is a feeder and helps to liberate its companions; the third, potash, stiffens the stalk. Use two pounds to a hundred square feet, digging in lightly. Feed shrubs as far out as the spread of the branches, not immediately around the base.

Now is a good time too for feeding the lawn. Use a good fertilizer, and when you mow, leave the clippings lie on the grass. Don't white-wash your lawn unless you want to grow dandelion and plantain; they thrive on lime.

EASTER BRINGS ANNUAL QUOTA OF LILIES

Easter

THIS is the season of the resurrection when all nature is awakening from the dullness, and apparent death, of winter to new life and beauty. The greening grass, the songs of birds, the first bright blossoms all proclaim the same glad fact—that nature is again enacting the annual miracle of resurrection.

NOT only is nature re-born by the magic of the Springtime, but mankind, as well, responds to the thrill of awakening life with new ambitions, new hopes, new determinations. At this season also comes the desire for things fresh and beautiful to match the shining newness of the glorious Spring days.

REJOICING in the re-awakened beauty of nature, and in the inspiration of the season, we extend the wish that each may find a new measure of achievement and happiness in this Easter period.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A NEW OPPORTUNITY—If the wicked will turn from all his sins that he hath committed, and keep all my statutes, and do that which is lawful and right, he shall surely live, he shall not die.—Ezekiel 18:21.

OKLAHOMA UNLIKE EAST

Because Tulsa and Oklahoma City have elevators in their skyscrapers and electric signs on top of them, some misguided souls have been led to the conclusion that Oklahoma is as civilized as New York, Pennsylvania or Illinois. It is a dangerous fallacy. Oklahoma is utterly unlike New York, Pennsylvania and Illinois. It has just impeached and ousted a governor on the ground that he was guilty of "general incompetency." In some Eastern states they refuse to elect a man to public office unless he can prove himself generally incompetent.

But Oklahoma has its own peculiar and artistic forms of incompetence. The real charges against Governor Henry S. Johnston were not specified in the indictments. The trouble seemed to be that, instead of behaving like a two-gun fighting man, he left things to "Mayme." And "Mayme" was not only a woman, but she trusted the stars. It irritated the frontiersmen, when they walked in to teach the governor how to run the state, to be told, "You'll have to see 'Mayme,'" and then to find that the governor's secretary held to Rosicrucian ideas and talked Yogi philosophy. The governor had his astral qualities, too; another spiritual lady testified that his "excellent spiritual sympathies and vibrations made him almost mediumistic." It is all right, in Oklahoma, to pray for guidance before signing a bill or to ask the party bosses what to do, but to consult the star, it appears, is frowned upon.

Governor Johnston is out, and so is his secretary. The governor did have a pleasant way of addressing Bible classes on the science of numbers, and he showed a certain courage when he called out the state troopers to disperse the legislature that sought to impeach him; but he never had the color of his predecessor, Jack Walton, who, when he called out the troops, gave the order, "Shoot to kill."

Walton also was impeached and put out of office, but he was a real ten-gallon-hat governor while he lasted. He gave the biggest dinner party in the history of the United States when he invited the entire state to join in celebrating his inauguration barbecue, and ordered 100,000 loaves of bread, 250 barrels of onions, 5,000 chickens, 1,000 turkeys, 500 "beef critters" and several hundred squirrels, deer, duck, geese and opossum for the occasion.

Neighboring commonwealths can only hope that Governor Johnston's successor will not succumb to the conventions of other states, but will continue the demonstration that Oklahoma's civilization is unique and that her public officers are gallant, individual and impeccable.

Your BROADWAY

By Walter Winchell And Mine

NEW YORK. — In 1906, when the Aerial Gardens (now the Ziegfeld Follies) was opened by Klaw and Erlanger, they found it tough sledding enticing people to get into the elevator leading to the roof theatre. At the time, Fay Templeton was featured. After her initial performance she received a daily rhymed mash note, flowers and gifts from a person named Thomas Lanphier, but the star snubbed him, sent back his presents and otherwise broke his heart.

When the Albany Night Boat docked upstate one morning, a stateroom revealed a photo of Miss Templeton, some letters written to her, some verse and a hat containing the initials "T. L." The names told of undying love, a bruised set of heart strings, and so forth.

Mark Luescher later explained the suicide to the papers, and the front pages carried the story. That night the crowds came to see Ray Templeton, and after that was a definite hit.

It was a first-rate press stunt, and not until several weeks had passed was the remorseful Miss Templeton tipped off that it was all a trick to entice trade, and that there never was a person named Thomas Lanphier.

The passionate verse she received (which the newspapers said revealed genius) was actually written by one of the owners of the failing theatre, Marc Klaw!

VIRTUE PAYS AGAIN

It was revealed in "The Town's Woman" which came to the Craig, that Virtue Pays, even if it doesn't pay much, as the saying goes. This new comedy, as it is described in the playbills, is from the Underwood of Martin Mooney, exploiter for John Golds, and by Thomson Burris, and while it did not appear to excite the first witnesses, it seemed to please some of them.

It is, for the greater part, an ordinary play, with an attention arresting episode or so, all of them widely scattered, however. It probably will not survive.

How a pauper, who is a bit of a shady character, himself, attempts to outwit a good girl, but is unmasked in his true colors before the denouement arrives, is presented shabbily, and there is a series of passages that apparently were aimed to startle the listeners.

HOUSE CAT

Love comes to us, a little cat. With soft and grateful purr; How truthful is his drowsy purr; How soft its fur!

Love seems a little pet to us. A small and helpless thing; But love's a patient tiger. Crouching to spring! —Mary Carolyn Davies.

UNDERWORLDESE

They were grabbing about a lad who was "talking too much" about a murder mystery. "I see he's getting his pictures in the papers shootin' off his mouth, ain't he?" said one rod totter.

"Yeah," observed another. "It ain't gonna be hard to bury him after he gets all that lead in his body!"

MERCILESS TRUTH

Take it from Ben F. Holzman, if your activities are confined to the Broadway district, and you can make two friends in a lifetime, then consider yourself a huge success.

TYPES I'M GLAD I'M NOT

Leon Erroll's definition of a kibitzer is a guy who wears white socks. He probably is the sort who also features button shoes, a pocket comb, a nail file (which he uses in public), stands before a subway gum machine mirror and squeezes out his blackheads, annoys prominent men seated on the date at a dinner by asking for their autographs, and still leaves a waiter a nickel tip!

North Adams, Mass., where, as the late Frank Van Hoven used to say, "they sit down front and devour their youth!"

And the gag they used to tell on that burg, viz.: "Talk about tough luck! Poor Loney Haskell broke a mirror last week, and the next day he was booked for North Adams!"

IN REACH OF LEARNING

Don't mourn because you didn't go to college. We all live with daily reach of learning. Most of us are to mentally imbedded to toll much with car minds. Anna Tramp, court interpreter in Berwick, Pa., has never studied languages in any school, but she speaks four languages besides her native tongue, and is familiar with six more dialects. College isn't so important as application to the means at hand.

HIGHER AND HIGHER

Chrysler, motor millionaire, builds a structure 68 stories high, running from one New York street to another. It is costing $15,000,000. It will be the highest building on earth inhabited by man. What next and whither? As soon as somebody builds a Biltmore, along comes somebody else and puts up a Triltmore. Unless we find out what we are building for, unless we learn what it's all about, will these structures fall upon us and destroy us?

WOMEN TO WORK

In the "recently celebrated" National Business women's week attention was called to the fact that 9,000,000 women go to business daily in practically every field. Whatever became of this dependent sex? And yet, this may not be unalloyed good news. A nation need not be particularly proud because 9,000,000 women go to work outside the home every day. For many of them it is the best thing they could do; for others it is neither the thing they want to do or can do best. They are the victims of circumstances.

BETTER THAN FOOTBALL

Ohio Wesleyan debaters have been on a 15-day tour of the southwest, meeting debate teams from other colleges. They have been discussing in well prepared, intelligent fashion, problems of real importance to this democracy. This is the kind of inter-collegiate relations that we ought to have a great deal more of. The sports in football and other college sports will take care of itself. The interest in exercise for the mind needs to be stimulated. It is a great day for any boy or girl when realization comes that sportsmanship of the mind is keen fun.

Let's have mental daily dozens and more debate teams.

ATTENDANCE OF CABINET AT CONGRESSIONAL SESSIONS

By NADE KELLY

Congressman From Pennsylvania (Melville Clyde Kelly) was born at Bloomfield, O., Aug. 4, 1883. He was educated at Muskingum college, New Concord, O. From 1911 to 1913 he was city editor of the Daily News at Bradock, Pa., founding the Bradock Leader in the latter year. He purchased the Daily Herald in 1915 and the Evening Herald two years later. Since 1917 he has been publisher of the Daily News-Herald. A member of the Pennsylvania house of representatives from 1916 to 1919, he was elected to congress in 1921 and has since represented the district.

Now is an opportune time with the new administration and the current discussion of plans for the reorganization of the government service, for the adoption of a bill providing for attendance of cabinet officers at sessions of the senate and the house. Responsible government is what Herbert Hoover wants as president, and this proposal is in accordance with the idea.

It would permit immediate information and immediate replies to inquiries with respect to the operation of the government.

In the last session of congress, there were attacks made against the executive departments and members of the cabinet on the floors of both the senate and house. There was no opportunity for those cabinet members attacked to meet these charges in the same forum in which the charges were made. They had to be content with giving out statements. Instead of this system, which is unfair to the needs of the government department, it is proposed in the bill I shall offer to provide for attendance and participation of the cabinet at congressional sessions.

And in this connection, I call attention to the views of President Hoover as expressed in a letter to me in 1922, when I first made the proposal in a bill which I subsequently reintroduced in the 70th congress.

Mr. Hoover made certain suggestions regarding section two of my bill, requiring the cabinet members to attend the opening of the session of the senate on Mondays and Thursdays and the opening of the sessions of the house on Tuesdays and Fridays. It may be that in reintroducing the bill it may be feasible to omit this second section; I am not certain yet as to the retention or elimination of this section, pending further study and ascertainment of views and facts on the subject.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY NINE, HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Puritanism and feminine beauty—what had they to say to each other? Not much that was encouraging or helpful. During the time when this determined religious sect was raising in England and in the colonies, beauty, and even health, labored under ridiculous difficulties. For the lofty pure in heart had resolved to cast out all such frivolous ideas.

The Puritans were ascetics in their habits of living, almost as severe and austere as the hard old ecclesiastics of the middle ages pretend to be. In a manuscript which deals with early colonial life we find that a pious dame of Boston, Massachusetts, meditated seriously the plan of having some of her daughter's sound teeth pulled out to mitigate her "sinful beauty."

Which recalls the injunction of the medieval St. Jerome who "entirely forbade a young lady to bathe," and taught her that to have a healthy appetite was sinful. Or the absurd doctrine of a fourth century bishop who praised a pale, hysterical young lady for having brought a "swarm of diseases upon herself which defied all medical skill to cure."

It was unfortunate that at this time—and indeed from the earliest days of history—the arts by which feminine loveliness attempted to improve itself were associated very closely with the courtesans and women of the demi-monde class who had always been first to adopt for their uses a new beauty trick or secret.

The fashion for very low-necked dresses, which made its way into Europe north of the Alps and into England during the sixteenth century, originated in the demi-monde, and for this reason produced varying impressions upon England. Queen Elizabeth adopted it, however, as she had adopted powdered and colored wigs, face creams, washes and paint and powder of all kinds, in defiance of her critics.

The reaction against the luxury, artificiality and sensuality of the European court life grew stronger in England through the seventeenth century, in spite of its own court extravaganzas, and during the Civil war days all extravagance in dress or manner was militated against.

During the reign of Charles I a bill came before parliament providing that "all women who, through the use of high heels, stays, false hair, false teeth, French carmine or powder, inveigled a man into matrimony, would be liable unto the law for fraud," and that the marriage would be declared "null and void."

This shows quite clearly the Puritan attitude toward feminine beauty arts, even those pathetic, if necessary, gestures, stays and false teeth, which we now hardly class among the venial sins of beauty.

But some blue laws went even further. The Puritan fathers of Pennsylvania and Connecticut condemned, as sinful, a bath on Sunday. And the stern leaders of early Rhode Island, having been sorely vexed by the growing habit of frequent bathing, which they considered both luxurious and extravagant, declared it a civil offense to bathe.

With such rules as these did the Puritan age attempt to deal with the laws of health and beauty.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Jr.—To pooh-pooh Col. Teddy Roosevelt, Jr., is quite the fashion.

The chorus of pooh-poohs rose to a climax recently, when young Teddy was suggested for the governor generalship of the Philippines. Naturally, a lot of politicians want that job. If Teddy can be pooh-poohed out of it, it leaves it to them.

With no wish to push him for that or any other post, suppose we give the colonel the once over, to see whether we can arrive at some sort of a conclusion concerning the calibre of citizen he is.

It is Teddy Junior's hard luck that people persist in comparing him with his father. Robert T. Lincoln, for instance, never would permit himself to be compared with his sire. He made a hermit of himself to avoid it. Throughout most of his career he dodged public life, for that especial reason.

The second and third generations of Grants have done the same thing, without carrying it to quite such extremes. They always have been satisfied to be simply a great man's descendants—each on his own account.

Young Teddy happens to have much the same tastes and ambitions as Theodore I. He has gone in for politics. And who not—if he chooses—as well as anybody? However, it makes him conspicuous—necessarily. And instead of estimating him on the basis of his intrinsic worth as an individual, the public insists on estimating him as his father's son.

This has been pretty severe to him. It gave him an early, easy start, to be sure; but, in the long run, that may only prove to have handicapped him.

a great many other supposedly capable officials. Indeed, numerous competent naval authorities still insist that, at least in principle, it was a good thing.

The colonel was an assistant naval secretary of considerable decisiveness of character and not all his decisions were wrong. He hated red tape. He had nerve.

Quite likely Teddy II would be anything but a conciliatory governor general of the Philippines. Teddy I, before him, was not a conciliatory personality.

One complaint of Teddy II is that he tries to imitate his father. Perhaps he does. After all, it is no bad quality in a son to consider that his father was a great man—and, feeling thus, to endeavor to follow as closely in his footsteps as he knows how.

Today's Recipes

Casserole of Split Peas—One pound split peas (cleaned and soaked over night), two onions (diced), one pepper (diced), 1/2 cup butter, salt, pepper to taste, one cup chick cream. Brown the onions and pepper in butter. Drain the split peas and add to onions and pepper. Add enough water and salt to taste and let simmer on top of the stove for about three hours, cooking the water gradually, keeping the water in casserole, add two cream and sprinkle lightly with bread crumbs and brown in oven. Serve with sprigs of parsley on top.

Spinach—Carefully clean two pounds of spinach. Place in pan with tight fitting cover; use only the water which clings to spinach. Cover tightly and cook. Place on platter, season with salt, pepper and butter and the juice of one lemon.

Salad Dressing—One egg, 625 cup salad oil, two tablespoons vinegar, juice of one lemon, one half teaspoon salt. Beat egg in large bowl. Gradually add oil and salt. Cook together until thick two tablespoons salad oil, two tablespoons flour and half cup of water. Add the cooked portion to other ingredients. Beat well and add vinegar and lemon juice and beat until creamy.

Diet and Health

BY LILL HUNT PETERS, M.D. AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

It Won't Be Any Easier Tomorrow
"I lost exactly 50 pounds by following your wonderful book, and I was so happy. And now I could kick myself—I went away on a trip and gained back just 20 of the pounds. It was so easy for me to slip back to my old ways! I have no will power, and can't get started to diet again. Please tell me what to do. M."

I wrote an article a few years ago just after I had a struggle similar to yours, M., and I will reprint it for I had many tell me it helped me. How this:

No one likes to be fat. I use the short and ugly term because it gives a definite picture more expressive than the term overweight. No one likes to be fat. I really don't believe even Mr. Johnston, the author of "The Fun of Being a Fat Man," likes to be fat. Methinks the gentleman doth protest too much. (Note: I regret to say that Mr. Johnston died recently of apoplexy.)

No one likes to be fat. You don't like to be fat. You plan to diet—tomorrow. Now tomorrow is today, and you are invited to a luncheon or banquet on a picnic and so you don't diet today. Still you are going to diet tomorrow. It is to those of you who are going to diet tomorrow that I address this article. I am going to tell you something that will start you dieting today.

It is this. You plan to diet tomorrow. You are hungry. A very tempting, fattening meal makes you think again that you will diet—tomorrow. When that thought comes say emphatically to yourself: "It won't be any easier tomorrow—unless I begin today." Picture yourself tomorrow going through the same desire for the fattening foods, and then say again to yourself: "It won't be any easier tomorrow—unless I begin today." I have found that that thought has been a very helpful deciding force with me many times.

Now, after you have controlled your appetite today, you can say it will be easier tomorrow. For that is an absolute fact. It will be ten times as easy tomorrow. What you do today from force of will, you are able to do tomorrow from force of habit. After a while you will find that the force of will occupies a minor place. And you are an example of the maximum—what you do at first from force of will, you do later from force of habit.

While I am talking of these psychological helps in reducing, I shall tell you of some other psychological helps. Plan the day before just what you are going to eat and write it down. Then it is settled in your mind, and you won't have to be holding debating societies with yourself and making decisions the next day. Don't allow your thoughts to dwell upon forbidden foods. Don't look in candy or pastry windows, and don't "taste." The second taste is always harder to resist than the first.

When you see a pound of candy you would like, don't think of it as candy, but as a lump of tallow annexed to your fattest spot! When your friends eat ice cream sodas (500 to 600 C.), you drink your plain seltzer water with the same gusto.

Have pictures of women with beautiful figures, whose proportions you want to approach, on your dining table and dresser, where you can see them when you are tempted to overeat and under-exercise.

If you go on 1,200 calories a day—which is a reducing number for most—and if your meals are properly balanced and arranged, you will not suffer from hunger.

Plan to have your meals at definite times. If you should feel uncomfortably hungry before they arrive, drink a glass or two of water—not too cold, and you may have a little lemon juice in it to make it more palatable.

Begin today to diet. It won't be any easier tomorrow—unless you begin today.

Tomorrow: Tuberculosis and Sunlight.

Editor's Note: Dr. Peters cannot advise, nor give personal opinion. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column, in turn. Requests for articles must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and 2 cents in coin for each article, to cover cost of printing and handling. For the pamphlet on reducing and gaining, 10 cents in coin, with fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, must be enclosed. Address Dr. Peters, in care of, this paper.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Should the girl friend take a back seat for the boy's relatives? That is the problem of one young lady. If he has a date with her should he break it to take his mother out or to entertain relatives? I think I'll probably get "in wrong" which ever way I answer, but I'll take a chance.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am 17 and in love with a boy 19. He also loves me and wanted to elope several times, but I refused. He is just out of school and we are both so young. We've been so happy until lately. His folks don't approve of me. You see I'm young and full of fun. I don't believe in hiding things. I've never done anything to be ashamed of, either. They want him to stop going with me, but I can't give him up. He has never been able to confide in his folks and he is sneaky. My mother taught me to be frank and open. I love her for it and can confide in her whenever I feel upset. I love him but he hurts terribly when he tells me how they talk about me. Please tell me what to do.

"JUST BEWILDERED."

You showed a great deal of sense when you asked to elope. I know you as you really are. Many older people think that if a girl looks "modern" she is no good. Do nothing at present. Trust that you will have a chance to show them that you are not to blame for what he does and that you are a fine little girl. Keep your mother as your confidante, and you can't go far wrong. What does she think about it all?

Well, Blondy, dear, the last question depends largely on you. If you are unselfish and thoughtful for his people, remembering that after all he belongs to them, too, you won't have any trouble. But if you insist on having him all to yourself, regardless of his mother's thought that as your contemplated trip was canceled, it wasn't so important that he be with you, and so asked him to escort her. And the other time, he naturally wanted to be with the cousins that he only sees occasionally. It would have been nice if their plans could have included you, but perhaps that SNKUS: While your friend's father is sick he, of course, cannot leave him, but when he recovers your friend should put it up to him that he will either have to have enough money out of the house to support a wife or he will have to look for other employment. If your friend won't do this it would seem that he is not as anxious to marry as he should be after going with you for so long, and it would be better for you to get interested in someone else. You are young. Snkus, so can afford to be patient for a little while, but not too long.

LOUGHRAN LOSE S WHEN HE WINS; OUTSMARTED BY JACK KEARNS

CHICAGO, March 30.—The sly ruckles of Jack Kearns contrasted with the sighs of Tommy Loughran as the two looked into their pocketbooks today in the aftermath of Paddy Harmon's opening round in his $7,000,000 Chicago stadium.

Loughran's disappointment was manifest when he learned he had defended his light heavyweight championship against Mickey Walker Thursday night for a mere $15,289.

Kearns' humor resulted from the fact that he and Walker received

$50,000 in cash for their efforts to take Loughran's title away from him.

The peculiar circumstances of course were the result of Kearns' sagacity in getting big money for fighters he manages. Whereas Loughran was willing to accept a 55 per cent guarantee of the gross receipts, Kearns demanded a flat guarantee of $50,000 if Walker lost.

Loughran had visions of a $300,000 gate but the check of the receipts revealed that the show had grossed $186,267.

Out of his 55 per cent, Loughran had agreed to pay Walker $50,000 if Mickey did not win the title and he also assumed half the responsibility for the semi-vindictive purse.

If Loughran had lost, he would have received the entire 55 per cent, minus $10,000 for Walker's training expenses.

It is easy to see that Kearns won if he lost. If Mickey had beaten Loughran, Kearns would have had $10,000 and a light heavyweight championship to exploit. As it is he has $50,000.

It was believed that the opening show in the stadium would have been a sell-out, grossing approximately $300,000. Although it was not a full house, a lightweight-weight match which draws better than $175,000 indoors certainly can not be termed a flop.

Loughran saw one ray of light, Harmon, in binding him to fight for the stadium, paid him a $25,000 retainer fee, but that fee binds Tommy to fight for Harmon during the next year.

WILMINGTON PICKS FOUR NEW CAPTAINS

Captains of the four major sports at Wilmington College were elected by the Varsity "W" men of the college at the annual Varsity banquet Thursday night at the home of Coach Bolen.

Eugene Kenfield, Flinday, a junior will captain the football team next fall. Garner "Doc" Srote, Leesburg, center, will lead the basketball team next season; Howard "Chuck" Welmer, London star athlete of the school, heads the 1929 baseball team, and Kenneth "Fuzzy" Welmer, London, his younger brother, will captain the track team.

Paul Boxwell, Xenia, was among four men named on the first ballot in the election of a football captain. Davis, one of the candidates, received the least number of votes and was eliminated. K. Welmer withdrew when he tied with Boxwell. A second ballot was taken and Kenfield defeated Boxwell.

Bowling

Inasmuch as the champion Greene County Lumber Co. bowling team has again clinched the championship of the Xenia Recreation League, the remaining two weeks of play will be featured by a race for runner-up position.

At present the Red Wing Co. holds a one-game lead over the Buicks. These two teams will fight it out next Tuesday night in a match that may decide which team will occupy second place when the season ends.

In addition to this match next week, the Greene County Lumber Co. meets McDowell-Torrence Monday night and the Lang Chevrolet Co. opposes the Lang Transfers Thursday night.

League standing follows:

| Team           | Won | Lost | Pct. |
|----------------|-----|------|------|
| Gr. Co. L. Co. | 51  | 23   | .726 |

BRADFUTE ESTATE VALUED AT $47,000

The late Oscar E. Bradfute, former president of the American and Ohio Farm Bureau Federations, and nationally known farm leader, left an estate valued at approximately $47,000, according to an estimate filed in Probate Court Friday when letters of administration were sought.

The estate is divided into personal property worth $17,000 and real estate valued at $30,000. His son, David Collins Bradfute, was appointed administrator and furnished $17,000 bond.

F. B. Turnbull, A. G. Collins and John Collins were named appraisers of the estate by the court.

MAY BE PAROLED

Nelson Posey, colored, this city, prisoner now confined in the Ohio State Reformatory at Mansfield, has been recommended to the Ohio Board of Clemency by the superintendent and chaplain of the reformatory as worthy of consideration for parole. The application has been fixed for a hearing April 2.

Easter Hymn

Christ the Lord is risen today,
Sons of men and angels say:
Raise your joys and triumphs high,
Sing, ye heavens, and earth reply.

Love's redeeming work is done,
Fought the fight, the battle won;
Lo! our Sun's eclipse is o'er;
Lo! He sets in blood no more.

Vain the stone, the watch, the seal;
Christ hath burst the gates of hell!
Death in vain forbids His rise;
Christ hath opened paradise!

Lives again our glorious King;
Where, O Death, is now thy sting?
Once He died, our souls to save:
Where thy victory, O Grave?

STUDENT HURT WHEN AUTO LEAVES ROAD

William Jones, 17, son of A. R. Jones, High and Lynn Sts., plumber, sustained a cut on the right cheek and was bruised and shaken when he lost control of the touring car he was driving and the auto turned after crashing into a pole, about seven miles east of Xenia, late Friday night.

He was picked up in a dazed condition by a passing motorist and brought to McClellan Hospital, this city, where an examination indicated his injuries are not serious. Jones, a senior at Xenia Central High School, was returning home from Jamestown when the accident occurred at a bend in the road. The car was damaged and the pole was broken.

The youth could not tell exactly how the mishap took place, other than something suddenly went wrong with the steering wheel. He was unable to say who brought him to the hospital.

RAIN, SNOW, COLD COMING ON EASTER

WASHINGTON, March 30.—Rain, snow, and chilly breezes threaten to make midday's parade of Easter (Friday Sunday) a drab affair. The U. S. Weather Bureau in its week end forecast today predicted rain, snow and colder weather for the eastern portion of the country.

Cloudy weather and showers were forecast for virtually every state in the south, where temperatures will be more moderate than in eastern and midwestern states. The drop in temperature and the precipitation was said by the weather bureau to be due to a disturbance moving northward from the south. Another storm in the southern Rocky Mountain region moving eastward.

BLAMES LIQUOR FOR KIDNAPING CHILD

CHARLOTTE, N. C., March 30.—Liquor was blamed by Curtis S. Devonshire, a salesman, for the alleged kidnaping of 12-year-old Alice Labutis from a Philadelphia home. Devonshire will be taken back to Philadelphia for trial.

The girl, whose home is in Wilkesbarre, Pa., was taken in Philadelphia taking treatment for a throat injury which made it necessary that she be fed through a tube, is unharmed and anxious to return home.

Devonshire told police he had been drinking considerably and asked the girl to direct him to a street where clients of his had moved. He kept on driving and arrived here. Becoming sober he wired for funds which he said he intended to use to send the girl back to Philadelphia.

GIRL INDICTED

CLEVELAND, O., March 30.—Virginia Craig, 18, of Canton, has been indicted by the federal grand jury on charges of driving a stolen automobile from Evanston, Ill., to Oberlin, O. The car, the indictment says, was the property of Rufus Davis, brother of the former vice president.

VETERANS PROTEST SMALL AMOUNT FOR HOME REPAIRS HERE

Protests against the action of the state legislature in ignoring improvements recommended at the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home were contained in telegrams dispatched Friday by Edward James, E. O. Jacobs and J. W. Lannon, members of the legislative committee of Gen. J. Warren Keifer Camp, United Spanish War Veterans, Springfield.

The telegrams were addressed to Governor Myers Y. Cooper, the senators from this district and the two Clark County representatives.

Only about one-fifth of the money sought by the Home to finance necessary improvements was appropriated by the legislature.

Col. Charles V. Burton, superintendent at the Home, although disappointed at the appropriation of only $101,000 for contemplated improvements, said that the institution will try to "make the best of it."

TEACHER AT HOME CALLED BY DEATH

Miss Thelma Davis, 23, Gallipolis, teacher at the O. S. and S. O. Home, died Saturday morning at 5:30 at the Home as the result of paralysis of the heart. She had been ill for only a few days, her condition becoming serious Friday night.

Miss Davis is survived by her parents and a brother who was with her at the time of death. The body will be taken to her home in Gallipolis, Ohio. W. J. Davis, county surveyor, this city, is an uncle of Miss Davis.

ACCUSE NERGO FOR RIOTING AT FIGHT

CHICAGO, March 30.—Kenneth Taylor, Negro, today faced charges of manslaughter, inciting a riot, and carrying a concealed weapon, in connection with the panic in which thirty-six persons were injured at a boxing bout in the Coliseum last Monday night.

Police said Taylor had been identified as the man who pulled a gun in an argument and injured fatally in the rush for the exits.

BRADFUTE ESTATE VALUED AT $47,000

The late Oscar E. Bradfute, former president of the American and Ohio Farm Bureau Federations, and nationally known farm leader, left an estate valued at approximately $47,000, according to an estimate filed in Probate Court Friday when letters of administration were sought.

The estate is divided into personal property worth $17,000 and real estate valued at $30,000. His son, David Collins Bradfute, was appointed administrator and furnished $17,000 bond.

F. B. Turnbull, A. G. Collins and John Collins were named appraisers of the estate by the court.

MAY BE PAROLED

Nelson Posey, colored, this city, prisoner now confined in the Ohio State Reformatory at Mansfield, has been recommended to the Ohio Board of Clemency by the superintendent and chaplain of the reformatory as worthy of consideration for parole. The application has been fixed for a hearing April 2.

Easter Hymn

Christ the Lord is risen today,
Sons of men and angels say:
Raise your joys and triumphs high,
Sing, ye heavens, and earth reply.

Love's redeeming work is done,
Fought the fight, the battle won;
Lo! our Sun's eclipse is o'er;
Lo! He sets in blood no more.

Vain the stone, the watch, the seal;
Christ hath burst the gates of hell!
Death in vain forbids His rise;
Christ hath opened paradise!

Lives again our glorious King;
Where, O Death, is now thy sting?
Once He died, our souls to save:
Where thy victory, O Grave?

Charles Wesley.

STUDENT HURT WHEN COUNTRY CLUB TO AUTO LEAVES ROAD

William Jones, 17, son of A. R. Jones, High and Lynn Sts., plumber, sustained a cut on the right cheek and was bruised and shaken when he lost control of the touring car he was driving and the auto left the Jamestown Pike and overturned after crashing into a pole, about seven miles east of Xenia, late Friday night.

He was picked up in a dazed condition by a passing motorist and brought to McClellan Hospital, this city, where an examination indicated his injuries are not serious. Later he was able to return home.

Jones, a senior at Xenia Central High School, was returning home from Jamestown when the accident occurred at a bend in the road. The car was damaged and the pole was broken.

The youth could not tell exactly how the mishap took place, other than something suddenly went wrong with the steering wheel. He was unable to say who brought him to the hospital.

RAIN, SNOW, COLD COMING ON EASTER

WASHINGTON, March 30.—Rain, snow, and chilly breezes threaten to make midday's parade of Easter finery Sunday a drab affair. The U. S. Weather Bureau in its week end forecast today predicted rain, snow and colder weather for the eastern portion of the country.

Cloudy weather and showers were forecast for virtually every state in the south, where temperatures will be more moderate than in eastern and midwestern states. The drop in temperatures and precipitation was said by the weather bureau to be due to a disturbance central northwest of Bermuda that is moving northwestward and another storm in the southern Rocky Mountain region moving eastward.

BLAMES LIQUOR FOR KIDNAPING CHILD

CHARLOTTE, N. C., March 30.—Liquor was blamed by Curtis S. Devonshire, a salesman, for the alleged kidnaping of 12-year-old Alice Labatis from a Philadelphia home.

Devonshire will be taken back to Philadelphia for trial.

The girl, whose home is in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., but who was in Philadelphia taking treatment for a throat injury which made it necessary that she be fed through a tube, is unharmed and anxious to return home.

Devonshire told police he had been drinking considerably and asked the girl to direct him to a street where clients of his had moved. He kept on driving and arrived here. Becoming sober he wired for funds which he said he intended to use to send the girl back to Philadelphia.

GIRL INDICTED

CLEVELAND, O., March 30.—Virginia Craig, 18, of Canton, has been indicted by the federal grand jury on charges of driving a stolen automobile from Evanston, Ill., to Oberlin, O. The car, the indictment says, was the property of Rufus Daves, brother of the former vice president.

VETERANS PROTEST SMALL AMOUNT FOR HOME REPAIRS HERE

Protests against the action of the state legislature in ignoring improvements recommended at the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home were contained in telegrams dispatched Friday by Edward James, E. O. Jacobs and J. W. Lannon, members of the legislative committee of Gen. J. Warren Kiefer Camp, United States War Veterans, Springfield.

The telegrams were addressed to Governor Myers Y. Cooper, the senators from this district and the two Clark County representatives.

Only about one-fifth of the money sought by the Home to finance necessary improvements was appropriated by the legislature.

Col. Charles V. Burton, superintendent at the Home, although disappointed at the appropriation of only $101,000 for contemplated improvements, said that the institution will try to "make the best of it."

TEACHER AT HOME CALLED BY DEATH

Miss Thelma Davis, 23, Gallipolis, teacher at the O. S. and S. O. Home, died Saturday morning at 5:30 at the Home as the result of paralysis of the heart. She had been ill for only a few days, her condition becoming serious Friday night.

Miss Davis is survived by her parents and a brother who was with her at the time of death. The body will be taken to her home in Gallipolis, Ohio. W. J. Davis, county surveyor, this city, is an uncle of Miss Davis.

ACCUSE NERGO FOR RIOTING AT FIGHT

CHICAGO, March 30.—Kenneth Taylor, Negro, today faced charges of manslaughter, inciting a riot, and carrying a concealed weapon, in connection with the panic in which thirty-six persons were injured at a boxing bout in the Coliseum last Monday night.

Police said Taylor had been identified as the man who pulled a gun in an argument and started the riot. One man was injured fatally in the rush for the exits.

BOOTLEGGER OF BARRED BOOKS THRIVES

NEW YORK, March 30.—The "book bootlegger," for a long time little more than a whimsical figment of the cartoonists' imagination, is now actually doing a thriving business in New York. Perhaps he is no more than a corollary of the recent renewed activity of John S. Sumner, head of the New York Society for the Prevention of Vice.

The latter, goaded by magazine articles and ironical bemoanings his milk-and-honey methods as compared to the inspired crusading of the late Anthony Comstock, has recently taken to swooping down on the authors and publishers of disfavored volumes and having all hands lugged to a police station with as great a clutter as a night club raid. Recently he actually succeeded in having a book banned in naughty New York that passed the Boston censorship.

Paralleling the vice society's new lease on life, bootlegging of obscene books has become quite an industry. Let the psychologists figure out why. Then center of the literary "whisper-lows" is in Greenwich Village, in the numerous small basement bookshops. A card cryptically marked or an "introduction" to a friend will cause the bootlegger to haul out his private stock. There is an enormous profit in the business.

Prices on the banned material range from $10 to $50 a volume. Office boys and stenographers rent them in plain covers, for $2 a week. Bookleggers who started with a few banned volumes of admitted literary qualities, such as James Joyce's "Ulysses," have branched out into a line of plain smut of the cheapest, train-buster variety.

And like the bootleggers, they also play tricks on their customers. Many an unsuspecting seeker after dirt has been sold for a fancy price perfectly legal literary material under the impression that he was buying forbidden fruit, just as speakeasies in the Times Square district palm off near-beer with a wink and a nod.

"TWO HELENS" WILL BROADCAST MONDAY

Under auspices of the Donah Baking Co., Dayton, the "Two Helens," Miss Helen Hurley, contralto and pianist, and Miss Helen Ford, soprano, popular Xenia radio entertainers, will broadcast a program of popular songs over Station WSMK at Dayton Monday night, April 8. They will be on the air for half an hour from 7:30 until 8 p. m.

The "Two Helens" will also be heard over the same station next Tuesday night from 10 to 10:30 p. m.

PAIR CONVICTED

Martin Nooks, colored, and his son, Robert, jointly indicted by the grand jury for theft of a car valued at $25 from Fred Williamson last February 4, were found guilty by a jury in Common Pleas Court Friday afternoon. The jury deliberated only a few minutes. Sentence was deferred by the court pending the filing of a motion for a new trial for the pair.

"I suppose you mean that it doesn't make anything up to you. I know it doesn't. I've been thinking about that, too. I'm going to pay you, or whoever paid your hospital expenses, every cent you spent. How did you get them paid?"

"George Harris loaned me the money for the hospital the first time I was there. I paid him back. I paid for the operation on my knee myself, the second time I was in the hospital, out of the money I had earned."

"How?" he demanded, looking at her intently.

"Working in a restaurant fourteen hours a day," answered Betty, crisply.

"Oh! Well, anyway, tell me what you spent so I can repay you."

"It is all paid. I will do nothing of the kind," Betty was positive.

"That's all nonsense. I can afford it. You can't."

"I can't afford to take money from you. There is no use to discuss it. I don't care to be under obligation to anyone."

"Oh, don't be a crab! Do you dance now?"

"I can dance, since my operation, if that is what you mean."

"I mean, are you dancing anywhere now in the evening?"

"No."

"I didn't know you knew stenography and typing."

"I went to night school while I was working in the restaurant."

He gazed into space, frowning, for some minutes. Then he turned in his chair and said: "Betty, I wish I could encourage you by keeping you here. You aren't all bad."

"Thank you!" said Betty, sarcastically.

Miss Molly Poli, daughter of Sylvester Poli, multi-millionaire, who came to this country a penniless immigrant, is to wed Marquis Lipo Gerrini, son of Princess Theresa Torlonia of Italy, according to the latest reports.

THE STORY OF A GIRL WHO MADE MEN LIKE HER

© 1929 by Central Press Association, Inc.

CHAPTER LI

When Betty entered Andy's office in response to the buzzer, the clerk who had been working at the filing cabinet had gone. She walked over to the desk, sat down and, pulling out the little slide on which she had taken dictation that morning, she looked up, calmly expectant, pencil poised.

"Betty, I want to talk to you," Andy said, rubbing his chin. How well she remembered the gesture. He always did that when he was puzzled. She noticed his use of her first name, but pretended not to.

"Yes, Mr. Adair."

"What in the name of heaven became of you when you left the hospital after that week?" he demanded, suddenly.

"I got a position as cashier in a restaurant, Mr. Adair."

"But you moved from your old room and left no address!"

"How do you know?" she asked.

"How do I know? As soon as I was able to be out I hunted for you, of course!"

"Why didn't you look in the hospitals?"

"How could I? I wasn't out for three months!"

"Out of what?"

"Out of the hospital! Didn't you know I was hurt?" He pushed the long hair back from his forehead to show a livid scar running up into his hair.

"How should I? None of your friends ever came to see me."

"That was simple. A passing motorist picked you up and took you to the hospital. I was crazy for a couple of months with convulsions, contusions and other things. I asked about you when I was myself again, but no one knew you were with me. The papers told about me, but your name was not mentioned."

When I was able to get out I made the rounds of the hospitals and found the one where you had been. But you left without leaving any address. I went to the old one, but the woman said some man had moved your things. She didn't know where he took them."

"I inquired at all the places where they employ dancers, even though I knew you had hurt your leg. You weren't dancing, so I supposed you had left town."

"I'm sorry, I told myself you didn't care to see me again," said Betty, simply.

"I didn't, except to make good for all the trouble I had made you," returned Andy. "That automatic accident was the best thing that ever happened to me. Betty, when I was well enough to think, my father and I had a long talk. He showed me just where I was headed, and put it up to me. I either had to settle down and go to work or else get out and make my own living."

"He didn't need to tell me that, although he didn't know it. I had many long, weary days to think it over. I made up my mind long before he spoke, to cut out the night life and booze and women-of—dancing girls and all that."

"Girls like me," prompted Betty.

"Well, yes! I burst out, 'Andy, I didn't mean it in just that way, but we might as well be frank. Dad gave me a chance in the firm and I worked like the devil under Larkin, and stayed at home nights or else went out with my folks and some of the girls that trot around in their circle. Then dad made me vice president, which doesn't mean much except he says if I keep on as I am going he will step down and out and turn the whole plant over to me.'

"That's nice for you," said Betty, dully.

"I suppose you mean that it doesn't make anything up to you. I know it doesn't. I've been thinking about that, too. I'm going to pay you, or whoever paid your hospital expenses, every cent you spent. How did you get them paid?"

"George Harris loaned me the money for the hospital the first time I was there. I paid him back. I paid for the operation on my knee myself, the second time I was in the hospital, out of the money I had earned."

George Beale reports from Hollywood that the panic which struck the film colony with the talkies has been dissipated in the light of later results and the talkies, strangely enough, have not chased all the established screen stars back to their Iowa washboards.

Beale made a survey which showed that not one of the long-time favorites of the films was lost in the shuffle around the microphones although some have had to resort to extreme measures and some of the lesser lights have fallen by the wayside because their continuance before the camera was not worth the effort.

Mary Pickford, Doug Fairbanks, Charlie Chaplin, Norma Talmadge, Colleen Moore, Clara Bow and others are still making pictures and will continue to do so. Speaking voices are at a premium but even poor recording voices won't drive out customers and the ingenious screen colony has found ers. Jesse L. Lasky personally told Maurice Chevalier not to acquire the habit of speaking untinged English, believing that his accent is an asset. He also so instructed Bacalanova also, not to take English lessons.

Lasky is not worried over speaking English in foreign-laid scenes, as it has always been done on the legitimate stage. He believes that the talkies will encourage better English just as the films aided fashions. Lasky also feels that American-made films will accelerate an understanding of English in other countries.

SUNRISE SERVICE WILL OPEN EASTER OBSERVANCE IN XENIA

Hundreds of worshippers are expected to participate in the solemn sunrise service in the Shawnee Park Sunday morning, beginning at 6:45 o'clock, when Protestant churches unite for their second service of this nature.

From the tower of the Court House at 6:15 o'clock, the clear notes of trumpets played by O. S. and S. O. Home boys will summon the faithful to the outdoor services commemorating the resurrection of the Saviour.

A procession will form at the Shawnee Park auditorium at 6:30 o'clock, the choir and ministers being led by the trumpeters, and proceed to the large white cross on the east side of the park, where the symbol of Christianity has been lighted by flood lights for several nights.

Services begin at 6:45 o'clock when the first rays of the sun shine forth and the program follows:

Hymn—"The Morning Light is Breaking".....Tune Webb
Prayer at Easter Sunrise.....
Hymn—"Rejoice, the Lord is King".....Tune, Arthur's Seat
Easter Sunrise Meditation—on John 10:1-10:10, Matt. 28:1-8.....
.....Rev. Joel Lunsford
Hymn—"Coronation"
Benediction.....Rev. R. Burket
Postlude—Trumpeters, O. S. and S. O. Home.

In case the weather does not permit outdoor services the First Reformed Church will be open and the services will be held there.

The union services are being held under auspices of the Xenia Ministerial Association according to a plan inaugurated last year and the Rev. W. H. Tilford, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church will preside at the exercises.

Catholics will welcome Easter morning with a high mass at 6 o'clock, a half-hour earlier than the usual first service on Sundays, to be celebrated by the Rev. David Powers, pastor at St. Bridget Catholic Church. The altars and sanctuary will be decorated with flowers and greenery in contrast to the somber appearance of the church during the sorrowful Good Friday period.

Xenians flocked to churches in celebration of Good Friday. Protestants to a union service at the First Reformed Church and Catholics to the service at St. Bridget Church. Ministers of the city conducted services at the First Reformed Church from 12 until 3 o'clock, the exercises being divided into periods for the convenience of worshippers unable to stay during the full time.

Merchants co-operated with the services by closing their places of business from 12 until 2 o'clock to

SEEK CANDIDATES FOR GUARD COMPANY

Captain O. H. Cornwell, commanding officer of Company L 147th Infantry, Ohio National Guard, is issuing an appeal for ten men with former military training to take examinations to be non-commissioned officers in the local infantry unit.

Successful applicants must agree to a three-year enlistment and have had military training in the regular army, National Guard, Citizen's Military Training Camps, Reserve Officers Training Corps, or at least one year in a military school.

Applications should be addressed to Captain Cornwell at the O. S. and S. O. Home. Applicants must also present two letters of character reference.

ELIHU UNDERWOOD, 90, DIES ON FRIDAY

Elihu Underwood, 90, of near Harveysburg, brother-in-law of J. Downing E. Second St., died Friday evening at his home. He had been in ill health for more than a month.

Mr. Underwood celebrated his nineteenth birthday, last February 17, surrounded by his children and relatives and greatly enjoyed the occasion, although ill at the time. He was known widely as originator of the Underwood apple orchards. Funeral arrangements have not been completed but the services will probably be held Monday.

SUNRISE SERVICE WILL OPEN EASTER OBSERVANCE IN XENIA

Hundreds of worshippers are expected to participate in the solemn Easter morning sunrise services in Shawnee Park Sunday morning, beginning at 6:45 o'clock, when Protestant churches unite for their second service of this nature.

From the tower of the Court House at 6:15 o'clock, the clear notes of trumpets played by O. S. and S. O. Home boys will summon the faithful to the outdoor services commemorating the resurrection of the Saviour.

A procession will form at the Shawnee Park auditorium at 6:30 o'clock, the choirs and ministers being led by the trumpeters, and proceed to the large white cross on the east side of the park, where the symbol of Christianity has been lighted by flood lights for several nights.

Services begin at 6:45 o'clock when the first rays of the sun shine forth and the program follows:

Hymn—"The Morning Light is Breaking".....Tune Webb
Prayer at Easter Sunrise.....
.....Rev. W. N. Shank
Hymn—"Rejoice the Lord is King".....Tune, Arthur's Seat
Easter Sunrise Meditation—on John 10:41-42; Matt. 28:1-8.....
.....Rev. Noel Lunsford
Hymn—Coronation.....
Benediction.....Rev. R. Burkett
Postlude—Trumpeters, O. S. and S. O. Home.

In case the weather does not permit outdoor service, the First Reformed Church will be open and the services will be held there.

The union services are being held under auspices of the Xenia Ministerial Association according to a plan inaugurated last year and the Rev. W. H. Tilford, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church will preside at the exercises.

Catholics will welcome Easter morning with a high mass at 6 o'clock, a half-hour earlier than the usual first service on Sundays, to be celebrated by the Rev. David Powers, pastor at St. Bridget Catholic Church. The altars and sanctuary will be decorated with flowers and greenery in contrast to the sombre appearance of the church during the sorrowful Good Friday period.

Xenians flocked to churches in celebration of Good Friday. Protestants to a union service at the First Reformed Church and Catholics to tre ore services at St. Bridget Church. Ministers of the city conducted services at the First Reformed Church from 12 until 3 o'clock, the exercises being divided into periods for the convenience of worshippers unable to stay during the full time.

Merchants co-operated with the services by closing their places of business from 12 until 2 o'clock to permit employees to attend the ceremonies observing the passion and death of Christ on the cross. Good Friday Catholic services began with the Mass of the Presanctified in the morning, followed by the tre ore services from 12 until 3 when the special Good Friday services broadcast from the chapel of the Fenwick Club, Cincinnati, were received by radio in the church. Brief services were held in the evening.

During this period the altars are stripped of their decorations, statues are draped in the purple that signifies ecclesiastic mourning and the faithful are not permitted to partake of communion, the sacred host used in the mass being sanctified on Holy Thursday.

Leant officially ends at high noon Saturday, and in contrast to the mourning period of the church, joy and thanksgiving for the risen Lord will mark the programs in all churches Sunday. Protestant churches will hold their usual services in addition to the union outdoor services and in many of them, choirs will render special Easter cantatas significant of the occasion of ecclesiastic joy.

Masses at St. Bridget Church will be at 6:30 and 10, the last being followed by benediction with the Blessed Sacrament.
